

Training/Research Fellowship for young medical cancer researchers

“Fondation pour la Recherche Nuovo Soldati”

The Fondation pour la Recherche Nuovo Soldati for oncology research has the pleasure to announce a one year Training/Research Fellowship for young medical cancer researchers. This Fellowship, which may possibly be renewed for one additional year, is available at the beginning of the year following the application.

The application should include :

- An application letter.
- A recent CV with a list of publications, etc.
- A training or research project written in French or English of up to 5 to 8 pages (including references) and the 3 to 5 most relevant publications. This project must be relevant to the interests of the applicant's current research group and should be possible within the timeframe specified. These elements must be explicitly detailed in the application.
- The agreement of both the applicant's current institution and of the proposed training institution as well as the name of the person that will be directly responsible for the trainee.
- A detailed provisional budget and research/training time-line showing that the project is feasible in the time available.
- For more complete details of the requirements see the Foundation's website <http://nuovo-soldati.ch>, “Applications”.

The maximum amount available is 50,000 euros.

The deadline for applications is the 1st December 2025 and the successful candidates will be informed in the spring of 2026

Interviews will be conducted in French at the beginning of January 2026.

One completed application should be submitted.

Applications must be sent by e-mail. All the relevant documents should be attached in one single file and sent the secretary of the Foundation's Scientific Committee.

An application for an additional year's grant should contain the same documents as well as a detailed report and a supporting letter from the Fellows' home Institution. It should be sent within the same deadline.

After the first six months of the Fellowship a brief report will be required specifying the training received, the difficulties encountered and any results produced. This should be sent the Foundation's secretary.
